

Katherine Ramsy: Asian Aid Ambassador Profile

Ningi, QLD – On the coast north of Brisbane

Retired TAFE and Metropolitan Business

College teacher

PA senior partner in medium firm of accountants

To Katherine, hope is in the “eyes of the children. Hope for a better future – not just an existence.” Her and her husband currently sponsor two children in India. One of her children, 15, said he wants to be a teacher. Katherine says, “that is what Asian Aid is all about – train them so they can train others, so that they too can have that “hope.”

Retired, serving at her church, and serving at a local op shop, Katherine strives to do more. “When I receive letters from my sponsored children, I am concerned that we are only just scrapping the tip of the iceberg.” She also has a passion for raising awareness and donations towards the ‘Uterine Prolapse’ in Nepal.

By being an ambassador, she hopes to “encourage others to sponsor children with their education so that they have a better future.”

Thank you Katherine for your amazing support of Asian Aid.
